

GEORGESON style

Kyndra and Larry Georgeson are the husband and wife team of Georgeson Style, a Denver-based interior design and design-build firm.

In the last few years, Georgeson Style has grown exponentially. Using modern aesthetic, globally inspired design and unmatched craftsmanship, their passion to make a “space you love to live in” is now reaching clients across the country. Most recently, Georgeson Style launched Kyndred™, a curated, online shop that offers clients direct access to many of the products and design touches Kyndra uses every day in her work.

LIFESTYLE

The Georgesons are a family full of love and stories... and their home is certainly where their heart is.

They adopted their daughter (14) from China in 2006 and their son (12) from Nepal in 2010. Their experience with adopting children from the other side of the world has exposed them to culture, design, art, and family tradition that directly influences their approach to design and life.

It is the Georgeson's aspiration to integrate "the world" into their own home, from the food they cook to the objects they admire everyday on their furniture, shelves and walls. This philosophy shines through in their online shop, Kyndred™ which illuminates their aesthetic and is all about expressing your unique style through the design of your home.

Kyndra

Kyndra received her degree in Interior Design from Kansas State University. After several years working for local design firms and manufacturers, including Knoll, she decided to start her own interior design business. In 2004, she opened Platinum Design Studio which serviced residential and commercial clients throughout metro Denver. Thirteen years later, Larry joined her and expanded their business to include general contracting services under the name Georgeson Style.

Larry

Larry graduated from the University of Colorado and soon after, moved to Southern California where he began refurbishing large yachts, developing a love for design and building. In 1995, he headed back to Denver, met Kyndra, and cofounded Catalina Trading Company, which imported reclaimed wood, furniture, and accessories from Southeast Asia. When Kyndra and Larry decided to create Georgeson Style, Larry attained his General Contractor's license and expanded the business into a full-service, design build company.

KYNDRED™

Kyndred is a curated, interior design shop by Kyndra Georgeson, launched in 2019. The products Kyndra chooses are a reflection of the natural relationship between life, love and home. Beautifully designed and always well-crafted, she offers a selection of decor from across the globe and often used in her own design. Kyndra believes that the “things” you choose to surround yourself within, ultimately tell the story of your life. A person’s home describes the places they’ve visited, the people they’ve loved, and the moments they’ve enjoyed and absorbed. Everything is woven together in a palette of personal expression.

The Kyndred shop will be updated with new products two to three times a year, offering seasonal items along with classic and modern decor. The products range from kitchen and entertaining pieces to textiles and art, starting at $30.

Kyndra is currently developing her own line of Kyndred products, proposed to be launched in 2023.
